"And in this undertaking, the Reader may see what Furniture (though it lie disperst) our Publick Records will afford for History: and how plentifully our own may be supplied and improved, if pains were taken therein: for what is hitherto made publick, hath been collected, chiefly out of old Annals, and they filled with few things but such as were very obvious, nay the Annalists themselves (for the most part residing in Monasteries) too oftentimes byass'd with Interest, and Affection, to Times and Persons: But on the contrary, in our publick Records lye matter of Fact, in full Truth, and therewith the Chronological part, carried on, even to days of the Month. So that an industrious Searcher may thence collect considerable matter for new History, rectifie many mistakes in our old and in both gratifie the world with unshadowed verity."—(ASHMOLE'S History of the Garter.)

P R E F A C E .

THIS volume completes the records of Episcopal acts from the death of Bishop Roger de Northburgh in 1358 to the death of Bishop Robert de Stretton in 1385.

I particularly wish to draw attention to the slip issued with this volume, containing further Addenda et Corrigenda for Book V. I am indebted for the correction of my many mistakes in Shrewsbury topography to a paper on the Will of Thomas Gamel, in the Transactions of the Shropshire Archæological and Natural History Society for 1906, to which reference should be made.

A paper on Bishop Robert de Stretton, read by the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher before the Leicestershire Architectural and Archæological Society in 1887, and published in the Associated Architectural Societies' Report, gives a much fuller account of the Bishop than that in the other volume, and an abstract of his will.

I feel that the Introduction needs some apology. It is little more than an attempt to collect from the Register some particulars bearing upon the ecclesiastical organization of the period.

I shall be grateful for corrections, criticisms, and suggestions for the improvement of these abstracts, as it is more than likely that I have not always hit the mark.

REGISTRARY.—William de Neuagh, Notary Public.

No complete survey of the ancient diocese is possible until the Registers of the whole period have been digested, as well as the Chapter Act Books and Papal Registers. The two volumes published are limited to a period of 27 years and to the Bishop's jurisdiction. Peculiars and Donatives do not appear. It would therefore be premature to attempt more than a few notes on matters with which this volume is concerned.

THE REGISTER consists of one hundred and thirteen parchment leaves, bound in sheep. The first seven leaves measure about $11\frac{3}{4}$ by $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches, the rest about $14\frac{1}{2}$ by 11 inches. It is well written and in good preservation.

It is chiefly a record of institutions to benefices. These include Abbacies and Priories, Deaneries and Prebends in Cathedral¹ and Collegiate Churches, Archdeaconries, Rectories, Vicarages, Chapels, Chantries, Hospitals and Inclusories.

INSTITUTION (called Collation when the Ordinary is also patron) is the act by which a Bishop, or other Ordinary, commits a cure to a clerk. The procedure was substantially the same as at present. The clerk appeared, in person or by proxy, before the Bishop, or his commissary, and, if everything was in order—deed of presentation, orders, age and character—was admitted, and, having taken the oath of canonical obedience to the Bishop,² and of residence³—if, as in the case of vicarages or chantries, residence was required,—was instituted; the sign used being sometimes the handing of the Bishop's biretta,⁴ or a ring.⁵ The Bishop then issued a mandate to the Archdeacon or his official⁶ for induction into actual possession of the benefice.

The process of INDUCTION is not described in this register, except that of the Archdeacon of Stafford, who was taken to the church of Stowe, and inducted by the handing or showing of the ornaments of the church, the chaplain and ministers thereof swearing obedience to him.⁷

The QUALIFICATIONS for a benefice depended on its nature.

Orders.—A chantry, of course, necessitated priests' orders.⁸ The same rule obtained in the case of Vicarages, though in two instances men were instituted as deacons. One of them was ordained priest a week later,⁹ and the other is a priest next time he appears in the register.¹⁰ Rectors were not generally required

³ Printed Residence for short.

⁵ By the Bishop of S. Asaph, see p. 208.

⁶ Printed Mandate for short. In the case of benefices not within the Archdeacon's jurisdiction, such as Religious Houses, Cathedral and Collegiated Churches, Free Chapels, etc., the mandate for induction was issued to some other proper person.

⁷ See pp. 140, 150.

⁸ There is a seeming exception on p. 222; but R. Colet was warden, not chanter.

to reside,¹ and first tonsure qualified them, though they were supposed to be in full orders, and might be required to proceed to them within a year of their institution. The Rector of Lawton was deprived because he did not do so.² It is evident that the majority of Rectors were priests. For Prebends nothing beyond clerkship was exacted, and residence was not required. And here it may be observed, that the designation clerk varies in meaning according to the context. The common significance is a clergyman, as distinguished from a layman, but in records of institutions it may be taken to mean one who is not in holy orders, as distinguished from a priest, deacon or sub-deacon.³

Age.—It is stated that sundry presentees were of full age, but beyond this there are no particulars as to the observance, or non-observance, of the canons in this respect; save only in the case of the Lady Matilda Botetourt, who petitioned to be admitted Abbess of Polesworth in spite of her defect of age—she was twenty—and, as her petition was backed by the King, the Bishop authorised the necessary dispensation.⁴

Condition.—There is one instance of voidance by marriage. John de Scholhall, priest of the chantry of Road by Tarporley and incumbent of Haslingden free chapel, contracted matrimony and solemnized it with a certain Margaret de London, widow.⁵

Other qualifications will best be shown by a typical inquisition. When a benefice was vacant, the Bishop sometimes ordered the Official of the Archdeacon to make an enquiry.⁶ This he did by summoning the chapter of the (Rural) Deanery, and taking the testimony of Rectors and Vicars on oath.¹ The finding usually runs thus:—That the benefice of A. is vacant, and became vacant on date, at place, by the death, resignation, or cession, etc., of B.C. That D.E. of F. is the true patron, and last presented the said B.C. That the presentee is of good report and honest conversation, freeborn and legitimate, competently literate, of full age, in — orders and not otherwise beneficed (or as the case may be).

STATISTICS OF INSTITUTIONS.—While in normal years the average number of institutions (exclusive of prebends and other non-parochial benefices, which were frequently held in plurality) was 35, the visitations of the Plague produced an enormous increase. Benefice after benefice is recorded “vacant by death.” In 1369 there were ninety-five institutions, and in 1361 there were one hundred and thirty-seven! There does not appear to have been any difficulty in finding men for the vacant places, and the proportion of them in priests’ orders is certainly as high as at other times; that is to say, of those whose orders are given, there are comparatively few who are not priests.

Duration of vacancy.—Benefices falling vacant were generally filled up without delay; sometimes on the very day they fell vacant, and usually within a month.² The shortness of the interval is remarkable when one considers the slowness of communication,³ and testifies to the advantage of a plentiful supply of clergy, and of not having to seek a man with private means.

EXCHANGES.—The frequency of exchange is remarkable. Out of some 1,100 institutions, no less than 320 are by exchange.⁴ Whether this proportion is normal or not, can only be proved by consulting the registers before and after. It appears to be

² The date of vacancy is not always given; but 100 benefices, taken as consecutively as possible, 50 in one place and 50 in another, were filled up as follows: Within one week, 19; two weeks, 25; three weeks, 25; a month, 13; two months, 10; three months, 5; four months, 2; lapsed (over six months), 1.

³ It is possible that deeds of presentation were sometimes given in expectation of a vacancy, so that, when it came about, the presentee had only to fill in the date and go to the bishop.

on the increase during the period contained in this register. The Plague years, which are marked by a great increase of institutions, are below rather than above the average for exchanges; and there is nothing to indicate that men kept moving on because they were not in full orders, for, except in the case of prebends and other sinecures, those whose orders are mentioned are nearly always priests. Many of the exchanges are with benefices in other dioceses.¹ In these cases one of the Bishops always commissioned the other to act for him,² and sent, with his letters of commission, an inquisition taken by the Official of the Archdeacon. The two clerks, or their proxies, appeared before the Bishop conducting the affair, who examined into the causes of the exchange, the rights of the patrons, and the fitness of the presentees. They then resigned their respective benefices—each protesting that if by any means he should be evicted from the new benefice, he meant to return to the old—and were duly instituted. A report was sent to the Bishop of the other diocese, who, after the new-comer had appeared before him and taken the necessary oaths, issued the customary mandate for his induction.

The protest made on resignation was not an empty form. In 1361 Simon Gentyll, Rector of West Kirby, exchanged his church for John de Cubley's prebend in the collegiate church of S. John, Chester. Some years afterwards both he and John were judicially evicted from the prebend, and in 1368 he was re-instituted to his former benefice.³

Some men appear to have been addicted to exchange, and in consequence some benefices changed hands several times in succession by that means. Simon Gentyll, who was a subdeacon, made at least three exchanges, the last only a few days after his re-institution. William Suwet, a priest, made four, three of them within a year. The most notable personage among the exchangers is William of Wykeham, who was presented by the King to a prebend in Lichfield, and exchanged it a few months later for one in Southwell.

² Up to the institution. Induction and canonical obedience were reserved to the diocesan. But the Rector of Fledburgh swore obedience to the Archbishop of York before the Bishop of Lichfield, see p. 77.

PATRONAGE.—Though a complete list cannot be made out from this register—not all benefices appearing in it—the proportion between the different kinds of patronage may be gathered with tolerable accuracy. The Bishop was patron of the prebends in the cathedral church of Lichfield and in the collegiate churches of Gnosall, S. Chad's, Salop, and S. John's, Chester ; but, except for cases of lapse, had very little parochial patronage. This was almost monopolised by Religious Houses¹ and Private Patrons, the former having 46 per cent., and the latter 44 per cent., the remaining 10 per cent. being held by clerics in virtue of their office: e.g., the dean and members of the chapter of Lichfield presented to the vicarages of their prebends, and the Dean of Lincoln had nearly the whole of Ashbourne Deanery in his gift. The King had his Royal Chapels, and came in for much incidental patronage, exercising the rights of Bishop and Abbots during vacancies, of foreign and alien religious houses during war, and of tenants-in-chief during minorities.² The Pope not only claimed the presentation to all benefices vacated at the Apostolic See,³ but, in spite of the recent Statute of Provisors, continued to provide men to benefices. He seems to have preferred those in clerical patronage for this purpose, possibly as giving a better hope of acquiescence on the patron's part, but, even so, his nominees were not always allowed peaceable possession. T. de Eltenhead, provided to a prebend in Penkridge, was supplanted by another claimant,⁴ and Hugh Carles was violently spoiled of a prebend in Abergwili by the Bishop of S. David's.⁵ With the exception of a Cardinal, provided to the Deanery of Lichfield,⁶ the Pope's nominees appear to have been Englishmen.

² The Earl of Chester (Prince of Wales) and the Duke of Lancaster exercised most of the Sovereign's rights in their respective counties.

³ i.e., when an incumbent died, or resigned, or was deprived of his benefice, at Rome, or wherever the Papal Court might be. See p. 163.

⁴ See p. 113.

⁶ See p. 136.

Disputes about patronage sometimes came before the Courts. The Bishop maintained his right to Chesterton and Worfield against the King;¹ the Prince of Wales, as guardian of the heir of de Orreby, recovered the patronage of a chantry in the church of S. John, Chester;² Michael House, Cambridge, recovered the advowson of Cheadle (Staffs.) against Basset of Sapcote, to the present advantage of Trinity College;³ and Sir John de Annesley would appear to have made good his wife's claim to Radbourne (co. Derby) against her aunt and others.⁴ When Grendon (co. Warwick) fell vacant in 1369, two different patrons appear to have presented, and both presentees to have been instituted.⁵

A few miscellaneous evidences of the practice of the time may be mentioned.

Benefit of Clergy is illustrated by the Archbishop's commission for demanding and receiving from the Justices all clerks indicted of crimes and imprisoned.⁶ John de Stokton, pleading "not guilty" to a charge of murder, and no one appearing to maintain the accusation, made canonical purgation in the Ecclesiastical Court, and was discharged with letters testimonial of his innocence.⁷

Deprivation.—Friar Richard, vicar of Walsall, having committed a fault, the Abbot of Halesowen recalled him to cloisters for discipline, and presented another friar in his place.⁸

Mention has already been made of John de Scolhall, priest, deprived of his benefices for marrying;⁹ of the Rector of Trusley, deprived after admonition for continued absence and neglecting to serve his cure;¹⁰ and of the chapel of Preston Wealdmoors, entrusted to another clerk, because it was deserted and deprived of divine service by the long absence of its rector.¹¹

Infirmity was differently treated. The Bishop appointed a coadjutor to the rector of Wolfhampcot, broken with age and weak in body;¹² and also to the vicar of Hucknall, incapable through loss of mind and blindness.¹³

Of Religious Houses, the smallest must surely have been Sandwell Priory. On the death of the Prior in 1361, the sole monk requests the Bishop to appoint a successor, and is himself appointed. In 1379 the house again wants a Prior, one of the two inmates having resigned the office, and the Bishop provides a monk from elsewhere to rule over them.¹

THE REGISTER OF PLURALISTS resident in the diocese was made in the year 1366 by order of Pope Urban V. All clerks who held more than one ecclesiastical benefice were required to make a return to the Bishop of the diocese in which they resided, showing the benefices held and the amount at which they were taxed (according to the Taxatio of 1291) or their true value.

The publication of the Pope's mandate does not appear to have been very systematic. The Bishop and others speak of it as "made, as is said"; one clerk has "heard of it by rumours," and another would have made his return sooner "had he known its form." This may suggest a doubt of the completeness of the returns, but is not to be wondered at. Neither the Bishop, who had been a pluralist himself, nor the clerks concerned, who might thereby be shorn of a benefice, could be expected to promote its publication. The Pope's object was not to suppress plurality—he was himself responsible for much by his "provisions," as the list shows—but to regulate, if necessary, and see that dispensations were obtained and fees paid.

The returns do not reveal any glaring abuses; rather they witness to efficient regulation. In no case were two parochial benefices (rectories or vicarages) held together: prebends in cathedral and collegiate churches accounting for the greater number of pluralities. Including "expectations" ("provisions" awaiting fulfilment), 39 clerks held 95 benefices (62 in the diocese and 33 outside it); of these 31 are rectories and 2 vicarages, 38 prebends (15 cathedral and 23 collegiate), 8 chapels (some of which are described as sinecure), 3 archdeaconries, 3 hospitals, 1 lazaret-house, 1 chantry and 8 expectations. No one held more than four benefices of any sort. John de Charnele, a priest, "of the blood of earls and barons," who held various offices under the King, derived £107 from his three benefices, but this was only about a fifth of the expenses of his household; and Walter de Campeden, Chancellor of the Duke of Lancaster, got £83 from his four. Otherwise, incomes range from £6 15s. to £40, averaging about £22; no very large sum, seeing that the stipends of vicars or chaplains would often have to be found. No doubt the returns of other dioceses would show benefices in this diocese held by men residing outside it, but the general conclusion would appear to be that pluralism was not then a crying abuse.

Sequestration of the fruits of a prebend in the church of Penkerich. The Bishop to the Official of the Archdeacon of Stafford and ds. Alan de Gaveley, rector of Codyngton, Lichfield dio., greeting, etc. We have received, by the hand of the proctor of Thomas de Eltenheued, letters of Pope Urban V., as follows: "Urban, etc., to the Bishop of Lichfield. The petition of Thomas de Eltenheued, claiming to be canon of Penkerich, states that he obtained, by papal provision, on the death of Thomas Michel, a canonry and prebend of the said church, was inducted, and for a time possessed them in peace. That David de Wollop, asserting himself a priest of Durham diocese, despoiled him of them, intruding himself into them and taking their fruits, claiming that they belonged to him of right. Thomas appealed to the Apostolic See, and we committed the case to Master Geoffry Faber, canon of Baieux, our chaplain, and auditor of cases of the Apostolic Palace, to hear and determine. He decided for Thomas, removed David from the occupation of the said canonry and prebend, and restored them to Thomas, condemning David in the fruits he had received, and in the costs of the case, reserving to himself the taxation of them. David appealed against this sentence. Whereon Thomas petitioned that as David had not yet possessed the canonry and prebend for three years in peace, and as sentence had been given for him (Thomas), the fruits should be sequestrated according to the constitution of Pope Clement V. We therefore bid you sequesterate, so that what remains over and above the burdens due, may come to him who shall obtain the final victory. Dated Avinion, viij. Id. Jul. the first year of our pontificate." We therefore, as the said proctor requests, and as we are bound to do, require you, and either of you, under pain of greater excommunication, to execute this mandate, and sequesterate the fruits of the said canonry and prebend, supporting the burdens upon them out of their fruits, and taking all care that ye may be able to restore the overplus to him that hath the final victory. Intimate to David, his proctor, and all others concerned, lest they pretend to ignorance of the law in this matter, that if any presume to hinder this sequestration or to occupy in any way the fruits, he will, ipso facto, incur sentence of greater excommunication, from which, unless the impediment be first removed, and the fruits occupied by him restored, he shall in no wise be absolved. And also let David know that any right he may have had in or to the said canonry and prebend no longer stands. Report in due time the day of receipt of these presents, and your action in the matter; also the amount of the fruits, and the value remaining after supporting the burdens. Dated Heywod, Kal. Oct. 1363.

Plea concerning the church of Worfeld—Hillary Term, 42nd Edward III. (1369). Roll lxxxvi. The Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield and Master Thomas de Tevelby together, for several defaults, 2d. They were summoned to answer to the King concerning a plea that they permit him to present a fit person to the church of Worfeld, vacant and belonging to his donation.

The facts brought forward in the pleadings are as follows:—That Bishop Walter de Langeton, who was Treasurer and Executor of the will of King Edward I., was disposed, in return for divers benefits received from the said King, to assign the manor of Grenford, co. Middlesex, which he had acquired to hold to himself and his heirs, to ecclesiastical persons, for the finding and maintenance of chantries and alms in the church of Lichfield for the souls of the said King and his ancestors, Kings of England.

That he gave the said manor to King Edward II., who, in recompense, granted to him and his successors, by letters patent, the advowsons of the churches of Worfeld, co. Salop, and Cestreton, co. Warwick, of which he was seized as of fee and right, and in the same letters, gave him licence to assign the said advowsons to ecclesiastical persons within his diocese, whether religious or others, for finding and maintaining chantries and other pious works in his Cathedral Churches for the souls aforesaid. Fol. 63. a.

That, as the Bishop could not safely carry out this intention without the Pope's consent, he got letters from the King to Pope John, who issued the desired bulls, and, on its being intimated to him that the church of Worfeld was then vacant by the resignation of Isambert de Longa villa, King's clerk—who had been presented by the King before he gave the advowson to the Bishop—gave the Bishop leave to dispose of the said church immediately. The King requested him to do so, but he refused, and presented Gilbert de Bruera, his clerk, and instituted him, and on Gilbert's resignation he conferred the church upon Walter Thorp, his clerk, and thus several times he bestowed it upon divers of his clerks, contrary to the condition alleged by the King.

That, when Roger de Northburgh succeeded to the See, the King issued to him letters patent, reciting the gifts of the advowsons to Bishop Walter, and the purpose for which he gave them; and renewing to him and his successors the licence to assign them for the aforesaid purpose. But, though several times requested by the King, he refused to assign them.

That the present Bishop has been several times similarly requested, but has also refused.

The King, who was represented by Michael Skylling, maintained that the grant of the advowsons was conditional on their being assigned for the chantries, etc., and that, as this condition has been disregarded, he has seized into his own hands the advowson of the church of Worfeld, to which—being now vacant by the death of William de Kirkeby—it belongs to him to present.

The Bishop and Master Thomas de Tevelby appeared by Philip de Drayton, the Bishop's attorney.

Fol. 63. b. The Bishop did not admit the King's pleadings, and was prepared to prove that the King had not in fact seized the advowson before he (the Bishop) had conferred the church upon Master Thomas, instituted him, and caused him to be inducted.

He maintained that there was no obligation to found the chantries. That in the letters patent of King Edward II. it appears that the grant of the advowsons was in recompense for the gift of the manor of Grenford, and was a simple and unconditional gift, by virtue of which Bishop Walter and his successors and his churches of Coventry and Lichfield came into unconditional possession of the advowson, so that the Bishop cannot alienate it without the consent of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield and the Prior and Convent of B. Mary of Coventry.

As to the licence to assign the advowsons, which follows the grant in the letters patent, it is a new grant and new matter, as much as if it had been by subsequent letters.

Fol. 64. a. Master Thomas pleaded similarly, and maintained that he had been rightfully presented.

Days were given: the Quindene of Easter (when the parties appeared); the Morrow of S. John Baptist (when the Bishop and Master Thomas made essoin); and the Quindene of Michaelmas, when the parties appeared and judgment was given by the Court that the grant of the advowsons was simple and without condition, that their appropriation lay in the election of the Bishop, and that the King has not the right to present to the church of Worfeld. Fol. 64. b.

Documents connected with the above plea.

The original grant of the advowsons. Edward, etc. Know that in recompense for the gifts and grants which Walter de Langeton, Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, has lately made to us of the manor of Grenford, co. Middlesex, which he was disposed to assign to his church of Lichfield, for finding and maintaining certain chantries and alms for the souls of Edward our father and of other our ancestors, Kings of England, we have given and granted to the said Bishop the advowsons of the churches of Cestreton, co. Warwick, and Worfeld, co. Salop, to have and to hold to the said Bishop and his successors in pure and perpetual alms. We have also granted and given licence to the said Bishop that he may give and assign the said advowsons to ecclesiastical persons within his diocese, religious or others, as may seem expedient to him, to have and to hold to themselves and their successors in pure and perpetual alms for ever, for maintaining chantries and other works of piety, according to the disposition of the Bishop, for the souls aforesaid. And to the said persons, that they may receive the said advowsons from the said Bishop and appropriate the said churches to themselves and their successors in pure and perpetual alms for finding and maintaining the said chantries and other works of piety, we grant special licence, the statute of mortmain notwithstanding. Witness the King at Westminster, 15th May, the 11th year of our reign. By the King to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The licence granted to Bishop Roger.—The King, etc. Know that we in recompense of a gift and grant which Walter de Langton, late Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, made to us, etc., as above to the word "notwithstanding." And the said Bishop, before he had given and assigned the advowsons to the said persons, died. We, wishing that the aforesaid shall have effect, grant and give licence to Roger, now Bishop, to assign the Fol. 65. a. advowsons, etc. [in similar terms to the foregoing]. Witness the King at Kenylleworth, 20th March, the 19th year of our reign.

Writ of Quare impedit.—The King to the Sheriff of Salop. Bid the Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield and Master Thomas Telby that they duly and without delay permit us to present a fit person to the church of Worfeld which is vacant and belongs to our donation; and, unless they do so, summon them to appear before our justices at Westminster on the morrow of Ascension day, to show why they have not done so. Witness the King at Westminster, 24th April, the 42nd year of our reign.

Memorandum. In support of the aforesaid plea another plea concerning the church of Cestreton was shown (of which a copy is attached to the present leaf)* which was pleaded before William de Herle and his fellow Justices of the King's Bench, Easter Term 3rd Edward III. Roll XVIII.

Memorandum. Master Thomas de Tevelby died on Tuesday the feast of S. Donatus, 1369, before judgment was given in the said plea. The Bishop, by authority of a Papal provision, instituted William Lombe of Salop to the church of Worfeld, who after holding it for a short time resigned.

Letter testimonial of the resignation. Robert, etc. Know that on May 15th, 1369, in our principal chamber within our manor of Heywod, William Lombe, Rector of the church of Worfeld, appeared in person before us and resigned his church in writing; which resignation we admitted. Richard to his cloister, to receive monastic discipline for a fault committed by him ; in accordance with an indult of Pope Honorius III., the original of which was exhibited before the Bishop, who caused letters testimonial of its inspection to be made. It is as follows :—

“ Honorius, etc., to all Archbishops and Bishops, greeting, etc. The Abbot of the Premonstratensians and other Abbots of his order have set forth to us that when canons of their order, dwelling in parish churches belonging to them, haply transgress, so that it is expedient that they be recalled to their cloister to receive the discipline of the order, some of you show them undue favour and try to keep them in places in which they cannot remain without scandal and harm to the churches. Besides, when ye pronounce sentence of excommunication upon them on account of their transgressions, ye are not willing to relax the same without a money penalty. We therefore ask and command you not to hinder the said Abbots when they think good to recall such to cloisters, for the avoiding of scandals and loss to churches, or even for the exercising of monastic discipline on offenders, but to institute to the said churches others presented to you by them, freely permitting the offenders to be recalled to the cloister to receive the discipline of their order ; lest, doing otherwise, ye embolden them to put off the yoke of obedience, and undermine the Abbot's power. And we strictly forbid you to exact a money penalty for relaxing sentences of excommunication passed upon them, since, neither have they anything of their own, nor ought their fault to cause expense to their

David's dio., worth 22 marks; the prebend of Lann'hairon of the collegiate church of Landewebrew, of the same dio., worth 100 shillings; and the Free Chapel of Hampton, Lichfield dio., worth 2 marks.
